September 4, 1986 - An unusually strong dust devil moved through Pullman Airport in Flagstaff, Arizona. A Cessna 182 plane was flipped onto two fuel trucks and roofing was torn off a hangar. The door to the National Weather Service office was flung open with dust and papers flying everywhere. Source: www.intellicast.com

September 6, 1881 - This day was the famous "Yellow Day" in the northeast caused by Michigan forest fires where 20 villages were burned and 500 people were killed. The smoke filtered out most of the light and left a brassy tinge on everything. Source: www.intellicast.com
